completed, and the new item should have been in production by late 1958 or early 1959 when MADAME production had been completed. The timing of this postulated activity is consistent with Khrushchev's statements of November 1958 that production of the ICBM had been set up and of January 1959 that serial production had been organized. It is also consistent with Khrushchev's recent statements concerning replacement of bombers with long-range missiles.
